

The Fire in the Forest

6A Alvina Au

There was an inferno coming from one of the trees in the forest as the grey smoke rose above the air, spreading its flames to other innocent trees, causing a forest fire but no one noticed it except for two people.

Two adolescents, Harry and Jack were strolling along a deserted concrete path in Botanical Country Park during a scorching flora and fauna, they smelt something weird...

It was smoke and there was a fire.

Harry and Jack looked around and saw some smoke behind a gargantuan oak tree.

"Oh no, Harry! This tree is on fire. We should put out the fire or else it would burn down the entire forest!" shrieked Jack.

"Look! There's a small cabin. Perhaps someone in the cabin can help us." said Harry as he pointed at a small beige wooden cabin with a metal fence around it.

The mates raced to the cabin and knocked on the door.

A mid-aged woman with strawberry blonde hair in a periwinkle hoodie opened the door.

"Hey, madam. A tree over there is on fire. Can we have some water to extinguish the fire?" Jack asked politely.

The woman laughed as if it was a joke and cried, "You kids always try to fool me. This time, I'm not going to fall into your trap."

Then, she bolted the door immediately.

The boys started to panic as the fire spread. They began to look for help but they couldn't find anything.

All of a sudden, a young jogger in a neon tracksuit ran by.

"Mister, can you lend us your phone? There's a fire over there!" said Jack.

When the jogger turned around, he saw the raging fire and was astonished. He quickly pulled out his phone from his pocket and dialed 999.

Soon afterwards, firemen arrived to put out the fire. The boys went home and felt relieved.

Since then, whenever Harry and Jack went to the countryside, they would always remember this memorable and unforgettable day.