

A Forest Fire

By Kwok On Kiu (6F)

Last week, Jack and Harry saw smoke from behind the trees when they were walking along the path on the hill. They were enjoying the beautiful view when they saw the fire.

Jack was really frightened so he cried, "The fire is going to burn down the forest!" Harry looked around and shouted, "Hey Jack! I see a house up the hill maybe we can ask someone for help." They quickly ran up the hill and knocked on the door vigorously, "Help! Help!" A woman came out and asked, "What happened?" Jack nervously said, "There's a fire in the forest! Can you call the emergency now?" The woman staggered, "What? OK!"

When they were waiting for the fire department to help, the woman became impatient. "How about using some water to put out some of the fire first?" They ran down the hill with buckets of water. They went back and forth for more water. At last, they put out the fire by themselves! The firemen only arrived by then. They were very impressed.

The next day, Jack, Harry and the woman were on the news. All the citizens spread the news everywhere about what they did. The mayor even commended for their bravery and said they had the potential for being a fireman. Jack and Harry were proud of themselves.
